student buzz

Educational charity Fashion Awareness Direct recently held its Fashion Futures 2 competition and fashion show at the Fashion and Textile Museum in London, UK.

After a seven-week programme of workshops at Hackney Community College, 15 students from London secondary schools were chosen for a five-day summer school at London College of Fashion.

They were given a brief to design a fashion sportswear garment inspired by Ancient Greece, for the London 2012 Olympic Games.

The winning design, by April Griffiths from Brook House Sixth Form College in Hackney, will be produced by Asda's George label, and sold in selected stores across the UK.
