

Supporting and promoting the art of fashion, the culture of fashion, the future of fashion

● PEDESTRIANS take over the streets for Camden Council's Car Free Day 2008. Chancery Lane, Holborn, was a no-go zone for cars, which were replaced by stalls and exhibits promoting alternative means of travel. The aim of Car Free Day 2008 was to encourage residents, businesses and other organisations to consider making their journeys on foot or by public transport – so that Camden can become a low carbon and low waste borough.

FACES IN THE NEWS

● ABOVE: Teenagers show off their skills at London Fashion Week. Twenty-two finalists, including four from Camden featured in education charity Fashion Awareness Direct's Fashion Junior Awards. Haverstock Enterprise student, Felipe Nascimento (second from right), 18, impressed industry judges to win the award for most Fashion Forward design. Jasmine Lee (far right), of Parliament Hill School and Hendry Chin Hang Sheng (second left) and Thanawat Singtosap (far left), of Haverstock Enterprise College, also got the chance to showcase some of their creations.